CLOCK MADE OF GLASS

A clock constructed throughout of glass is the result of six years' work on the part of a Bavarian glass polisher. The plates and pillars which form the framework are of glass, and are bolted together with glass screws. The dial plate, hands, shafts and cog-wheels are of glass, and glass wedges and pins are used for fastening the various parts of the running gear together. The clock itself, the key by which it is wound is of glass. The construction of the remarkable time piece was a matter of infinite pains. Some of the parts had to be made as many as forty times before a clock that would go could be produced.

NEW INVENTION PROTECTS ZEPPELINS

An American with a German name is the designer of a system of defense against Zeppelin attack, which is being tried out in both London and Paris. Literally, Joseph A. Steinmetz of Philadelphia would mine the air against the monster dirigibles, says the St. Louis Republic.

When the war broke out and the menace of the Zeppelin first loomed, British officials coldly rejected Steinmetz's plans to mine the London-for against Zeppelins, but with a few raids on Paris and English coast cities the Britishers hastily sent for the plans and now are said to be ready to give them a trial in case of another Zeppelin invasion.

Small hydrogen balloons carrying high explosive bombs will fly from every building of importance in London and Paris, if the Steinmetz plan is adopted in its entirety. The balloons will be held by a fine but strong wire, weighing but four pounds to the mile, and having a tensile strength of 120 pounds.

The wires will be controlled by windlasses. The raiding airplanes, sighted by a lookout, will be permitted to come almost within range of the hydrogen balloons. Then, when too late for the Zeppelins to turn back, the scores and hundreds of bomb-carrying balloons will be released. As the Zeppelins are 900 feet long, they would have a hard time in escaping one or more of the bombs.

Each bomb is surrounded by a ring of hair triggers, and the slightest touch will cause an explosion which would undoubtedly ignite the gas in the Zeppelin. The hydrogen balloons carry a number of hooks to be ensnared in the silken hide of the raider, thus insuring that the hair triggers on the bombs come in contact with the gas bag.

The extension of the Steinmetz plan contemplates a fleet of aeroplanes also carrying several of the bombs suspended on a long wire. It would be the object of the aeroplanes to get above the Zeppelins and drag the lines with the bombs directly across the heads of the balloons.

PREVENTS SNOW DRIFTS ON TRACK.

To prevent the drifting of snow in railroad cuts, is the object of an invention patented by Benjamin F. Swezey, of Bellingham, Minn. The device consists of a framework of notched beams running parallel with the sides of the railroad cut. In the notches are placed strips extending at angles of approximately sixty degrees with the horizon. It is claimed that when the wind strikes the strips, the snow will be deflected downward around the forward end of the device on one side of the track and up under the strips on the other side.

ELECTRIC PLANT IN ARCTIC CIRCLE.

The "farthest north" electric plant is being constructed at Mount Hope, 160 miles north of the arctic circle. There are 400 persons at this place and the plant is being built by one of the missions.

The darkness at Mount Hope is intense during the long arctic night and the electric plant will supply power for both light and heat. Engineers at the University of Pennsylvania will design the equipment.

The electricity will be generated by wind power, as the wind at Mount Hope is steady and seldom falls below twenty miles an hour.
